This architectural drawing shows a proposed section through a building. The section reveals internal walls, a floor slab, and a roof structure. A door is shown in profile, leading into a room. The drawing uses standard architectural conventions, with hatching for different materials like brick and concrete.

EXTG SECTION

1 : 100

This architectural drawing shows an existing section through a building. It follows a similar path to the proposed section, revealing the current internal structure. A door is shown in its existing position. The stairs are also present, though their construction may differ from the proposal. The exterior wall and foundation are clearly defined with appropriate hatching. The drawing provides a baseline comparison for the proposed changes.
